About Town.

The higher estate has been making extensive improvements on the one-half acre property.

Seth L. Roberts is now erecting a house in East Newark which he expects to occupy when completed.

A family from Philadelphia has taken the house formerly owned by Mr. Acker on Ridgewood Avenue.

Robert G. Thomas and family, of Brooklyn, have taken board at the Park House for the month of June.

Mr. Willard Richards, having lately returned from Mexico, is now about to start for Europe on private business.

Mr. Ridd, who recently purchased the home of Mr. Ed. Wilde, is making considerable improvements upon his property.

Mr. Baxter reports that he has but two houses for rent on his books. This speaks well for the demand for Bloomfield property.

Glenridge is becoming very aristocratic. We understand that a German Baron and a French Count have lately taken up their residence in that part of the town.

Dr. Davis continues to improve. He has regained his power of speech and has considerable extent the control of his limbs. Unless some accident supervenes, he is expected to recover.

Charles L. Seibert of this place gave a birthday party on Monday evening at his residence, on Weaver Avenue, to the teachers and officers of the German Presbyterian Sabbath School.

Mrs. Thomas Oakes, Mrs. Henry P. Oakes, Mr. David Oakes and Miss Mary Oakes have returned from Virginia.

The health of the young people which has been the cause of some anxiety has been greatly improved by the trip.

The grading of the sidewalk in front of Martin Bros. property has been completed. The elms have been sacrificed, the work when completed will greatly improve that now unsightly place.

The Gas Company have decided to install new lamps to the street supply. There will be put upon State Street and the remainder will be distributed from the Gas Company of Madison and Linden Avenues, north to Ridgewood Avenue, and through Ridgewood Avenue to the residence of Mr. Robert L. Radd.

Many Ellen Higgins living on Hickory Street was arrested by Constable John Smith, Monday evening, charged with Mr. Elmer Hays with disorderly conduct and annoying her, she pleaded guilty and the Court suspended sentence. This is the first arrest Constable Smith has made since his election.

The Gas Company have elected the following gentlemen as officers and directors for the ensuing year. President, Dr. Joseph A. Davis; Vice President, Dr. J. H. Love; Secretary, Eugene Underwood; Treasurer, William Underwood; Directors, Daniel Dodd, Mr. Edgar Mathias Plum, Thomas W. Longstreet, together with the President, Vice President and Secretary.

Mr. J. Williams Macy, whose singing is such a feature of the Weber Quartette, in Westminster Lyceum, will be in Bloomfield last winter and the winter season to give an entertainment at the Lyceum. Those who attend will have a pleasant time. Mr. Macy will be assisted by Mr. and Mrs. Walter Morris, Mr. L. P. Sabel, and Professor Piderit.

The Lyceum Temperance School will give its First Anniversary on Wednesday evening, May 20th, at quarter of eight o'clock. The friends in Westminster church have shown their interest in this branch of Temperance by sending their doors most cordial.

The children of the Lyceum Temperance School will be present on that evening, and will extend to them a warm welcome. Admission free.

Several young men learned a severe lesson a few evenings since from what they first expected would only be a joke. They with several girls were employed in a factory at Franklin, and on the day in question the girls were requested to work overtime, and as they were on their way home the boys came out of their hiding place with a sheet over their heads and ran after the girls; as may be expected, they were greatly frightened. On the following morning the circumstance was reported to the superintendent and the boys were all discharged.

Jeremiah Ackerman who was recently wounded by stabbing in Thomas West's saloon at Franklin is now slowly improving although his ultimate recovery is not yet assured by the attending physician. Three boys of Bloomfield named Croose, Clarence, and Weigler recently started for the West, expecting to reach their destination on the strength of a few dollars which Clarence had earned in a Watessing shop. On reaching Easton Pa. the money had all been consumed, and being destitute, they decided to return home which they did by walking the entire distance, about seventy-five miles.

The case of Miller vs. O'Neil, mentioned in last week's paper, was tried on Monday before Justice Hageman and resulted in a judgment for the defendant with costs. The evidence showed that the sore on the horse's tongue had existed prior to the time he was taken to O'Neil; that it was not the result of a burn, and that Mr. O'Neil had never operated on the horse in any way. Dr. J. C. Corliss, a prominent veterinary surgeon from New York, and the plaintiff's principal witness, testified that the sore was not caused by a burn, and had in all probability existed for a considerable time. Mr. J. D. Gallagher appeared for O'Neil. The plaintiff acted as his own lawyer.

Scotland Illustrated.

A large audience assembled in Library Hall Monday evening to visit Scotland in company with Mr. Ragan. This is most encouraging. It has been many times observed by the sarcastically inclined, that nothing but a Negro Minstrel show could fill that Hall. While this was not strictly true there was an approximation of truth in it too close for comfort. The growing interest which has attended Mr. Ragan's lectures, leads us to hope that if he returns next season as he intends to, he will succeed in filling the auditorium of Library Hall to its utmost capacity.

The voyage from New York to Glasgow was first described. While this is a many times told tale it always becomes interesting in the hands of as good a talker as Mr. Ragan. Then followed a run through the parts of Scotland usually visited by the vacation tourist. Glasgow, Loch Lomond, Loch Katrine, The Trossachs, Stirling, Edinburgh, Melrose, and the Land of Burns.

The views were for the most part very good indeed. Colored views of scenery are as a rule a mistake, and those exhibited on this occasion were not an exception. The charm of a photograph is its accuracy and exact reproduction of the smallest details. The coloring interferes with the transparency of the slide; and by reason of lack of light many even of the larger features of the picture are lost, and such an unnatural gloom thrown over the scene as to render it scarcely recognizable. This even when the coloring is true to nature. But when for instance the surface of Loch Katrine is made a dark indigo blue, as it was in one view, it suggests a dyer's vat quite as much as the limpid waters of that beautiful lake. These red white and blue pictures, however, seemed to give great pleasure to many in the audience, and Mr. Ragan no doubt understands his business.

The views of the Trossachs were especially fine. One could almost imagine himself wending his way along that winding road, which once travelled is never to be forgotten. No photograph can do it justice, but it may, and in this case did most vividly suggest it. This on the contrary cannot be said of the views of Stirling. No one could ever gather any sort of an idea of the appearance of it from the views presented. The selections illustrating Edinburgh were very successful. In describing Princess street the lecturer spoke of the "gayly dressed people." We should like to know the dates when he made his notes, for if there was much gay dressing there particularly on the part of the ladies, it entirely escaped our very careful observation on many separate occasions. Edinburgh is the most classically beautiful city of Northern Europe, but in the matter of dress—well we had better drop that subject.

The latter part of the lecture was devoted to the Land of Burns, too often left unvisited by the hurried traveller, but a veritable land of enchantment to the lovers of Burns—and what class escapes his charm? Saints and sinners unite in their admiration.

The audience remained interested to the end and the members like Oliver Twist are no doubt ready for more.

NEWS NOTES.

Victor Hugo's definition of Paradise is "a country where the parents are always young and the children always little."

A thousands pajamas and as many flannel shirts have been sent to the Sudan from a single branch of the National Aid Society of England.

Travelling mesmerist are said to be accompanied by "subject" who have been trained to resist the ordinary test of burning and pricking, and can thus simulate the hypnotic sleep. They are known to the professional mesmerist as "horses."

The piercing and numerous street cries one hears every morning in Paris are taught by a professor, who instructs his pupils from a work published in the time of Francois I.

An American Philistine has built himself a house on the topmost peak of Biblical Mount Carmel. He went to dig a cistern, and found one already hewn in the living rock, 14 feet deep and 2 feet 3 inches square. He needed a wine cellar, and found an old tomb under his house, in the loculi, or coffins, in which the irreverent wretch stowed his bottles.

Among the "curiosities of commerce" none, perhaps, is more curious than that the major portion of the produce exported from South Africa is simply used for the adornment of ladies.

The annual meeting of the lotowners in the Bloomfield Cemetery, will be held at the office of Thomas C. Dodd on Liberty street, on Monday, June 1, 1885, at 8 o'clock P. M. for the Election of managers, and for the transaction of such other business as may properly come before them. C. PELOUDET, Treasurer. Bloomfield May 15, 1885.
